

Tacoma, WA; August 10, 2020: Four-packs from the world's first organic brewery, Pinkus (Münster, Germany) are not at every single beer store in the US yet, but retailers selling them now are happy! These 330 mL (11.2 oz.) four-packs join the half-liters sold in the US for 35 years.

- Pinkus Münster Alt: Pale, golden, hazy; excellent, herbaceous aroma; lightly sour fruit-acid palate; long dry finish with a note of inviting sharpness. The only example left of Münster altbier, paler than Dusseldorf's brown altbiers. USDA Certified Organic. 5.1% ABV.
- Pinkus Ur-Pils: “Ur” means “original” or “old-school” - clean, brilliant gold all-malt lager with dry finish. In Germany, pils are a national heritage. USDA Certified Organic. 5.2% ABV.

In 1816 when Pinkus Brewery opened, the city of Münster, Germany, had over 150 breweries. Over the decades, the number declined - increasing access to clean drinking water was probably a factor. Today, Pinkus is the only remaining brewery in Münster: the quality of their beer kept them thriving.

With the perspective of generations, and looking back to 1816 when every brewery in the world was organic, the Müller family returned to all-organic production in the 1980s, becoming the first organic brewery of the modern era.
